

Out-of-State students utilizing an HMO health plan (under their parents or otherwise), may not be covered for routine medical care unless that care is provided in their home state.

Most major health insurance companies offer special programs for students attending college in another state. These programs are referred to as Guest Memberships or Out-of-State Coverage.

A Guest Membership Plan will provide medical coverage to the student while they are pursuing a degree out-of-state. These plans are normally available at no additional cost.

To determine if you will have coverage for all medical care, contact your insurance company to explain that you will be attending college in another state. Our student health insurance broker, RCM&D, can advise you on how to obtain a Guest Membership or Out-of-State Coverage.
